"She worked at the cafe across the street and I was always at the bar. Well when her shift was done, she would always come by with her friends to watch the band. I was with someone at the time, but I needed a dance partner. I'd be able to yell across the entire bar, "Wife!", she'd come runnin' and I'd have my dance partner. And that's how we were married before we even started dating."
